

The following seminars will be presented at 5.15pm on selected Mondays in the Shulman Auditorium, The Queen's College, Oxford. All welcome! Tea and coffee provided.

- 20 Jan           Chas Bountra, Professor of Translational Medicine, Oxford
We Are Not Good at Translating Lab Science into New Medicines for Patients
- 17 Feb           Trish Greenhalgh, Professor of Primary Care Health Sciences, Oxford
'The Crucifixion of Brother Peter': Moral Claims and Religious Imaginary in Two Competing Narratives about the Cochrane Collaboration
- 11 May           Charles Forsdick, James Barrow Professor French and AHRC Theme Leadership Fellow for 'Translating Cultures', Liverpool
Translating Cultures, Translating Illness
- 18 May           Banafshe Larijani, Director of the Centre for Therapeutic Innovation, Bath
Translating Symbolism into Precision Medicine
- 1 June            Jean-Marc Dewaele, Professor in Applied Linguistics and Multilingualism, Birkbeck
Why Thinking and Talking about Trauma in the First (L1) and Foreign (L2) Language are Different Experiences
- 8 June            Matthew Reynolds, Professor of English and Comparative Criticism, and Leader of the 'Prismatic Translation' Research Project, Oxford
Fiction and the Disease of Translation
- 15 June           Ross White, Reader in Clinical Psychology and Leader of 'Mental Health in Context' Research Group, Liverpool
'The Morning Dew Dries Off the Grass': Exploring Idioms of Resilience in Local Languages Spoken in Uganda

Please note that the seminars will be recorded: <https://podcasts.ox.ac.uk/series/translating-illness>
Logo design by Eoin Kelleher <http://eoinkelleher.com/portfolio/journey-through-the-body-book/>

Generously supported by:

wellcometrust
ISSF

University of Oxford
MEDICAL SCIENCES DIVISION

For queries please contact: marta.arnaldi@mod-langs.ox.ac.uk